D-12 targets illegal signs on state ROW

Move ’em out!

Signs on state right-of-way are an eyesore and a sight distance problem, not to mention against the law. Maintenance crews removed signs throughout D-12’s seven counties in November and will make another sweep in the spring. “We had a little grumbling, but not as much as we expected,” said Darold Slone, Operations Branch Manager. “There were a few businesses and churches that had invested in elaborate, permanent, lighted signs and we worked with them to give them extra time to remove them. When you drive through any of our counties now, the difference is remarkable. Definitely worth the effort!”
